1. Camp Krasnogorsk, in the Moscow area, holds 1,500 German officers, partly of the upper grades, in addition to approximately sixty generals.
2. Intensive indoctrination work is carried on, but its success is doubtful. German leaders in this work include Lt. Generals Banler and Krappe, Colonel Rerer, and (ranks unknown) von Löschebrand,* Marz,* Graf Waldersee,* and Major General von Witsleben.
3. Generals Krappe and Banler belonged to the Abwehr and have supplied much information about it to the Russians. Krappe and Colonel Rerer also saw service in the Spanish Civil War and have reported on their experiences to the Russians.
